

The Janesville Daily Gazette.

VOLUME 24

Entered the Post Office at Janesville, Wis., as second-class matter.

JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, MONDAY, JANUARY 3, 1881.

The commercial failures for 1880 were the smallest since 1875.

If the Sawyer men had half as much wisdom and soberness as they have cheek, the Sawyer boom would amount to something.

The first thing on the programme at Madison on New Year's morning was a fire which caused the death of a woman and her child.

One cabinet lady in Washington, once made five thousand calls between the opening of the season and the beginning of Lent, and left a card with each of them.

The Democrats will be glad to have the old year get out of sight. But still, the old year is not so easily forgotten as the new one.

Fifty different cabinets have been made for General Garfield by his "devoted friends," and yet the reports from Mentor say that the President-elect has not yet decided on a single member of his cabinet.

Vice President Wheeler is talked of for New York for United States Senator. Mr. Conkling does not enter the cabinet of President Garfield, or does not go abroad as minister of some court, he will have something to say as to the New York senatorship.

It is predicted that Missouri will soon be a Republican State. Eight-tenths of all the immigrants to that State are Republicans, and St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Sedalia, and other fine cities and towns are already Republican in politics. The Burlington Hawkeye thinks it will give a majority for the Republican candidate for President in 1884.

Some time since it was stated in the Gazette that several farmers in this State who complied with the importunities to sign a temperance pledge, were astonished by the presentation of promissory notes to pay cash instead of to practice total abstinence. This same same if notorious shippers are carried on in other States, but not with very much success.

The New York Tribune takes pleasure in quoting the fact that the Democratic members, who were sure Mr. Blaine's defeat at Chicago was his political death, are now engaged in a lively discussion of his chances for the first cabinet position under President Garfield. For a man who died last June Mr. Blaine displays astonishing vigor, and may live to attend the funeral of the Democratic party.

The President has hit upon a new way of running the navy department during the rest of his term. He will make each member of his cabinet secretary of the navy during the next two months, each holding for the term of ten days. The attorney general holds that the President can designate other officers to act as secretary of the navy, and in accordance with that opinion, he will pass the honor around to his cabinet officers.

It is now ascertained that the population of the United States, exclusive of the inhabitants of Alaska, and Indians, is 50,152,550, an increase of 12 millions since 1870. The State which shows the greatest increase is Texas, being 778,000; Pennsylvania comes next with 760,000; and "bleeding Kansas" follows with 622,000. Of the nine great western States Wisconsin has increased the least, being 250,000; and Indiana is second, its increase being 208,000.

Things have started right in South Carolina, and if they keep it up the State will become thoroughly civilized. The Legislature is tussling with the evils of dram-drinking, duelling, and carrying concealed weapons. This is a religious thing to do. Now let the Legislature tussle with another great question—that of bull-dozing and ballot stuffing. These with whisky drinking, duelling, and concealed weapon carrying, should no longer disturb the peace and homes of the South Carolinians.

General Grant will not need any of the benefits of the Presidential fund. He has not only an annual income of $8,000 or $10,000, but his friends in Philadelphia have raised a one hundred thousand dollar purse for him which is now waiting the General's acceptance. One man gave $25,000 of this amount, and he felt very much interested in the welfare of Grant that he announced if it was necessary he would pay the $100,000 himself, or if it was thought best would be willing to pay a life annuity to the ex-President of $25,000.

There is a growing sentiment among the ablest of our financiers that the government will hardly be able to float a three per cent. bond at par, and therefore strongly urge Congress to make no mistake in passing a refunding bill. This is hardly any doubt that the best judgment of the country is against a three per cent. loan. It has been shown by ample experience that the best borrowing rate of the government, is 3½ per cent, and there are no indications that the rate will be any lower. There is a widespread belief among excellent business men, that the rate will be higher, and should that be the case, a three per cent. bond would fall below par. Inasmuch as the government can well afford to pay 3½ per cent. for its loans, and that this rate would be sure of making the refunding scheme successful, we believe

THE ALPENA.

The Delayed Verdict of the Coroner's Jury—The Vessel Condemned as Rotten and Unseaworthy.

GRAND HAVEN, Jan. 2.—The coroner's jury in the case of the victims of the Alpena disaster have rendered the following verdict:

"We, the jury, find in the evidence before us that the several persons found, known to have been passengers on board the steamer Alpena on the 15th day of October, 1880, came to their death by the foundering of the steamer Alpena while on her usual route from Grand Haven, Mich., to Chicago, Ill. We also find that the said steamer Alpena was in bad condition, and unseaworthy for a passenger boat; that her life-preservers were in bad condition and unfit for use, many of them having the appearance of having been used by passengers; and the fastenings broken off, showing that said fastenings were rotten. We further find, from the appearance of one of the life-boats belonging to the steamer Alpena, that it was rotten and unseaworthy; that said steamer was manned by inexperienced sailors, excepting the captain and mates. We also find from the evidence of John Luikens, formerly second engineer on the Alpena, that the 'holding-down' bolts of the engine bed-plate were either broken or pulled through the bottom of said steamer Alpena; that said second engineer Luikens was ordered to turn up said 'holding-down' bolts on every trip, and that when he asked the chief engineer of the Alpena to report this to the chief engineer of the Goodrich Transportation company, he was ordered to mind his own business and do as he was told. We further find from the evidence that in the opinion of this jury the Goodrich Transportation company is censurable and should be held responsible for any and all damages."

GOVERNOR FOSTER.

His Attitude as to a Cabinet Position Under General Garfield.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A private letter has been received here from Governor Foster, in which he defines his attitude as to a cabinet position. He does not hanker after a place in the cabinet. He seems to care very little about it one way or the other. If offered he would accept, but does not want it to come in the shape of a sop, that is to let him down easy from his defeated Senatorial aspiration. If the position was offered him simply on his merits as a man and a Republican he would take it, but has no positive desire in that direction, in this connection. It is mentioned here by those who know Foster, that he would make an excellent Secretary of the Interior. A prominent official remarked to-day that contractors would never be able to swindle the government on blankets and general Indian supplies.

ARMY OFFICERS.

The Wholesale Manner in Which Army Officers are Retired from Active Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Dissatisfaction in army circles about the retirement of aged officers is on the increase. General Sherman has failed to influence army matters at the White House, and has ceased to try. Another lot of aged officers are said to be marked for retirement. Speaking of this matter in reply to a complaint from an army officer, the Capital says to-day: The mad greed for promotion is at the bottom of the retiring business, and many of our most efficient army officers are placed upon the shelf to make room for others infinitely their inferiors in experience and business attainments. The fact that because a man has lived a certain number of years he should be withdrawn from active service is absurd. Because that one is 60 years of age he is ipso facto of no value to the country, or to the community, no one will admit. Why, then, legalize and make the offense of age a statutory crime? We know not a few, but many, men on the wily side of 60, markedly the superiors in physical power, clean intellectual decisiveness, and business ability of those of twenty or thirty years their juniors. Age, like sanity, is only a comparative affair, and it is far from wisdom, as well as a distinct disadvantage, to make gray hairs, grown heavy in the nation's service, discreditable. Let this retiring business either cease, or else be pursued within the limits of reason."

TENNESSEE.

The Republicans Have Good Prospects for Electing the Senator.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 2.—A Nashville special says that the Republicans seem likely to capture the House in the Tennessee Legislature. The high and low tax Democrats are taking the alarm and are attempting to settle their difficulties. If the Republicans hold well together they will get the organization of the House and have a good prospect of electing the United States Senator.

OBITUARY.

KENOSHA, Jan. 1.—Mrs. A. N. Doolittle, for many years prominent in social and religious circles here, and one of the oldest residents of the city, died this morning at her residence on Market street. She leaves three daughters—Mrs. A. B. Capron, of Winnetka; Mrs. J. M. Miller, of Chicago, and Miss Hattie Doolittle, of this city. The funeral will take place at her late residence on Monday at 2:30 o'clock p. m.

FIRE AT MADISON.

MADISON, Jan. 1.—New Year's was ushered in here with a serious fire and loss of two lives. About half-past 1 this morning an alarm of fire was rung, which many firemen mistook for ringing in the new year, a custom prevalent among our German citizens. The fire proved to be a Norwegian hotel. It burned rapidly, and the engines were slow in getting to work. A Mrs. Miller and child had come in on the 10 o'clock train. Some one remembering her, called her, but she did not appear. Meanwhile the fire continued to burn, and all entrance to or exit from the house was shut off. When it was announced that Mrs. Miller was in her room a ladder was placed to a window, which was broken open, and she was found with her child in bed, smothered to death. Her husband, B. M. Miller, is employed as a brewer in Hausmann's brewery here, and was on duty when the terrible affliction came to him. She had just arrived from Chicago. She was only about 27 years old. Loss about $2,500.

RECEPTIONS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 1.—The New Year's receptions of 1881 have fully equalled in brilliancy any our city has ever known. The crisp, cold, exhilarating atmosphere and good sleighing gave novelty no other New Year in the memory of the present generation has known, and added greatly to its enjoyment. The White House has, as usual, been the scene of the greatest interest. The Marine Band, as customary, played in the large entrance hall during the reception. The long central corridor was festooned with flags, and further decorated with flowers and potted plants. The program of the order of reception as previously published was strictly carried out. Mrs. Hayes was assisted by Miss Anna Herron of Cincinnati, Mrs. Mills of San Francisco, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, and others. Secretary Evans made the presentations of members of the Diplomatic Corps to the President. The largest number of these were assembled to-day that ever appeared here on any one occasion.

KEYES DEFENDED.

General Atwood Replies to Judge Howe's Letter Regarding the Senatorship.

He Defends Keyes Against the Assault, and at the Same Time Argues for His Election.

The Question of Blame and Credit for Republican Defeats and Victories in the Badger State.

The State Journal, in commenting upon the letter of T. O. Howe, says:

"That Judge Howe should favor the election of Mr. Sawyer to the Senate is natural and proper; if he did not do so, we should deem him more cold-blooded and selfish than even his bitterest enemies have charged him with being. Next to himself, he no doubt would and should prefer Mr. Sawyer in the Senate, as the better man. However, there, without the cultivated intellect of Howe to direct it. The two men represent the same part of the State, the same Congressional district, entertain the same views of men and things. Therefore it is easy to see why Howe and those who have been specially benefited by him in the Senate are anxious for the election of Mr. Sawyer."

MR. HOWE SUPPORTED FOR THIRTY YEARS.

Mr. Atwood says that in 1849 his paper, under its present editorship, commenced to advocate the political advancement of Senator Howe, and for thirty years it supported him for every office he wanted until 1879, when it declined to support his re-election to the Senate for the fourth time, because it was evident that the masses of the Republican party did not desire to have him longer in the Senate.

The editor then recites the personal qualifications of Messrs. Sawyer and Keyes, respectively, and insists that Judge Howe overestimated the former and gave the latter less than his dues. He says: "That Mr. Sawyer is wealthy, and has made his money by industrious and business habits, no one doubts; and Mr. Howe claims that he uses his money with great liberality, and cites an instance of his aiding a business man in time of dire need, with the use of $5,000. This is all to his credit, and we are glad he has the means to help his friends. So far as we know this great liberality is well deserved, but we apprehend it has been confined to his own Congressional district. If it has spread to other parts of the State, we do not know it. A Senator represents the whole State."

And continues to say that while Sawyer has spent his life amassing a fortune, Keyes has made the best use of his time so far as qualifying himself to represent intelligent Wisconsin in the United States Senate.

Referring to the charge that KEYES' SERVICES TO THE REPUBLICAN PARTY have been overestimated, Mr. Atwood says: The man who doubts that his work was able, skilful, and effective, simply was not acquainted with it. In 1867, under Mr. Rublee's chairmanship, the majority for General Fairchild for Governor was 4,764; in 1869, under the first year of Mr. Keyes' chairmanship, the majority for Governor Fairchild was 8,263; in 1871, the majority for Governor Washburn was 9,361; in 1877, under Mr. Rublee again, Governor Smith received a plurality 7,273, but lacked 17,646 of receiving a majority over all the votes cast. In the Presidential election of 1872, when the great number alluded to had broken loose from the party, Mr. Keyes conducted the campaign so skillfully that General Grant received 187,315 in this State.

The article continues: In a manner, so ungenerous as to be unworthy of the distinguished ex-Senator, Mr. Howe refers to the defeat of the Republican party in the State as being attributable to the management of Mr. Keyes. This was the election of Governor Taylor in 1873.

THE CONTEST OF 1873.

This resulted from a combination of causes, as much beyond the control of the champion as a willow tree. The defeat of the previous year had increased among Republicans; a granger element had sprung up among the people against railroads; a temperance movement struck against the Republicans; their candidate not being popular with the railroad interests at the time, was opposed by all the force of the great railway corporations in the State—while Mr. Taylor received the monopoly and anti-monopoly vote; the temperance and the liquor dealers' vote; the full Democratic vote and the Liberal vote in the State, and was elected, as unexpectedly to his own party as it was to the Republicans.

Mr. Atwood claims that it is unfair not to give Mr. Keyes credit for restoring the Republican party to power before he left the chairmanship. In 1874, the Legislature was re-elected; in 1875, Mr. Ludington was elected Governor; and in 1876, in one of the hardest political battles ever fought in the State, with the largest vote ever before polled, the Republican electors were chosen by a respectable majority; and it is folly to say that this victory was not largely due to the efforts of Mr. Keyes.

INDEFATIGABLE LABORS OF MR. KEYES.

He worked, as no chairman ever worked before in this State, and exhibited a force and skill in the direction of the campaign that is deserving of all praise; and yet Mr. Howe fails to note the fact that there was such a campaign.

If Mr. Sawyer possesses the political power in the district claimed by Mr. Howe—and which we do not deny—it is only shown when he has a large personal interest at stake in the election. Not so with Mr. Keyes. He works to the extent of his ability every year. Like all men, he has his choice for candidates, but when one is nominated against his choice, he does not desert him. He believes in the principles of the Republican party, and believes the triumph of that party is essential to the welfare of the country, and no candidate of his party is defeated for want of effort on his part. He is no fair weather politician, but works in all weather. Let the record show which of the two candidates for the Senate is the best partisan and has the strongest claims upon the party for support.

—How strange that Doctors will disagree upon a very plain case, and even doctors and editors often do the same thing, as in a case on a late evening, when each was in attendance at a pleasant social gathering. On departing each retired to the dressing room and took what they thought belonged to them; but to their great sorrow, the Doctor found his overshoes too large, and could hardly navigate on account of their enormous size; and after hard labor for several blocks, informed his wife that wedding had expanded his head, and so enlarged his overshoes that it was impossible for him to proceed further. They called at the nearest drugstore, the doctor left the overshoes, with the order to have them sent up in the morning by a dray; while the editor endeavoring to place on his feet the overshoes left at his disposal, sprained his back, and after many efforts, in vain gave up the case as a failure, and then for the first time charged upon the lady of the house that some vagrant had stolen his boots. Had the editor been able to have worn No. 19 without crippling his feet, all would have been well, but the doctor learning of his distress has repaired his loss, and all are happy.

"CALLER" FLOWERS.

How They Abounded on the First Day of the New Year.

Some of the Ways of Entertaining Friends, and Some of the Ways of Getting There.

Incidents of the Day.

New Year's day was given over to social doings, business being suspended, the cares and burdens of life being tossed aside as far as possible, and the time given to the exchanging of merry greetings and happy wishes. The ladies who received calls numbered about one hundred and fifty, but there were not that many places to call at in order to greet all these, as they clustered in groups at various houses, from three to fifteen joining in the reception. Most of the houses, where these receptions were held, were very tastefully decorated, and such mottoes as "Welcome," "Happy New Year," etc., were visible everywhere. There was a bountifulness of refreshments, and some very temptingly arranged tables, with pyramids of fruits, with a dazzling array of silver, and with dishes of great variety and to do withness.

At Mrs. Harriet McKee's there was a jolly company throughout the day. Fifteen ladies were receiving there, and in the evening there was gathered a large number of friends who joined in the merry dance, with Anderson's band furnishing music.

At Mrs. Charles Atwood's there was almost as large a number of ladies receiving their friends, and their manner of entertainment was decidedly novel and enjoyable. Four large rooms were cleared for dancing, and throughout the afternoon there was the merry whirl, while a constant stream of callers kept coming and going. In the evening the company was swelled by the coming over of those who were receiving at Mrs. St. John's, and at Mrs. O. Sutherland's, and with their friends, the numbers grew until they filled the rooms. Dancing was kept up until near midnight, and all had a jolly time.

At Mrs. O. Sutherland's was one of the most beautiful and tempting spreads of the day. The table was very finely arranged and the serving of hot oysters, meats, etc., was supplemented by a great variety of delicacies.

At Mrs. Clarence Jackman's there was a special supply of fruits in all varieties, and cigars to while away the distance to the next calling place.

Mrs. St. John's may be termed the musical headquarters for the day. There was singing there, and instrumental music, in addition to the usual attractions of the New Year's reception.

At Mrs. Judge Pritchard's there were card parties and a good social time, which, with a fine table, tempted the caller to a long tarrying.

At Mrs. Thomas Lappin's there was a merry time all day, and it was one of the pleasant places, which though not announced, was nevertheless found out by many of the callers.

At Mrs. Bump's there was also a hearty welcome, jolliness, and a good time, and so on, through a long list. At Mrs. Kibbee's there was a very fine table and at Miss Gowley's there was one of the most pleasingly arranged tables of them all.

At the Messrs. Griswolds there was one of the jolliest times all day and in the evening quite a little company of happy folk rallied there. Friends also flocked to Mrs. Foote's, Mrs. Draper's, and the other places already announced. Everywhere there was the hearty greeting the merry laughter, the glad songs, the satisfying of appetites, and a happy, happy time.

Among the callers, there was one company which was conspicuous. The vehicle was one of Burr Robbins' baggage wagons and drawn by four horses with plumes. The company styled itself "The Merry Band," and everyone was provided with an instrument of tin, some very ingeniously made, and representing all the various needs of a first-class brass band. The music given was in keeping with the instruments, and was enthusiastically executed as a serenade, before entering upon the duties of the parlor and the dining room. The band consisted of Frank Webster, Herb Allen, Charles Stevens, Will Palmer, Charles Putnam, Emmett McGowan, Robert McLean, Will Ashcraft, and Bodell McDermott. C. E. Wintermute was not able to put in a personal appearance owing to sickness, and Ben Potter, of St. Jo., Mich., could not come as expected.

Another merry group of callers were Ed. F. Carpenter, C. E. Ranous, Charles Atwood, E. P. Doty, C. E. Moseley, H. A. Doty, Frank C. Cook and Fred F. Prentice. A large ice wagon answered for a coach, being nicely carpeted and provided with cushioned seats. Charles Atwood served as deliverer of the ice, and on arriving at a place, would lift out the frozen chunks of humanity with a pair of ice-tongs, one by one, and carry them in to be thawed out. They made much merriment. Will Williston, who is now in Leadville, and who has been with Atwood's band for six years, could not get here. He was missed sadly.

The Glee Club were made welcome everywhere. The group consisted of C. N. Vankirk, C. A. Carter, J. Frank Penner, Charles S. Clark, Clarence L. Clark, George T. Pritchard, and R. R. Lee. They sang at each place visited, and added much to the jollity of the day.

Among the others who made the rounds were: Pliny Norcross, A. O. Wilson, C. W. Kibbee, A. H. Sheldon, C. E. Cummings, and J. E. Addy.

John H. Roberts, Frank L. Hoskins, Henry S. Shelton, Jr., R. J. Rogan, of Winona, Minn., and W. F. King.

C. S. Cleland, J. Gowley, L. A. Gowdey, Dr. G. G. Chittenden, G. N. Clark, J. L. Draper, A. P. Davies, N. L. Clark, B. Draper, and O. Withington.

T. F. McKee, George McKee, E. B. McKee, and W. D. McKee. "McKee" was their password, and by the time they had all introduced each other separately to about fifteen ladies, it sounded like a myriad of echoes of the name, and they had much merriment over it.

James W. Nash and Wallace W. Nash. H. H. Rose, of Fond du Lac, C. K. Mixer, of Rhode Island, Wilson H. Dee and L. J. Kinney. This quartet had some special fun, as two of their number not knowing all the ladies, the other two took occasion to inform the ladies that one of the visiting gentlemen was rather deaf, and needed loud talk. The ladies raised their voices to a high pitch, only to find out later in the day, that it was only one of those jokes which New Year's makes allowable.

Burr Robbins, O. Sutherland and Frank L. Smith.

Beau Hulihan, Richard McKee and Frank Whitaker.

Frank Farnsworth, Nate Clark, George Dutton and Frank Haselton. Herbie Ford and George W. Field. Ed. M. Church, and Jim D. Holmes. C. H. Hemming and Ed. Putnam. Al. Kavelage and Fred Hastings. O. W. Bemis and D. W. Kolle.

Rev. T. W. MacLean and Dr. George H. McCauley. J. D. King and E. T. Foote. Rev. T. P. Sawin, A. L. Wickham and others made the rounds individually, but the above include most of those who went by companies. Many others made a few calls on personal friends, but did not spend the day thus.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

Joseph N. Hoops, special agent of the American Sewing Machine Company, arrived here last Wednesday to settle up the company's account with its local agent here, John H. Smith. Hoops claims the balance due is about $1,500, but could not make any settlement satisfactory to himself, at least, and Smith seemed to be determined not to square up. In looking up the matter Hoops became convinced that there had been some crooked work going on, and as a result of his investigation, he concluded that Smith had been embezzling. He accordingly entered complaint, charging that one amount of $50 had been embezzled on the 20th of last August. Smith was arrested Saturday evening as he was sitting in the variety theatre, and was lodged in jail. This morning he appeared before Justice Nolan, pleaded not guilty, and gave the required bail of $200 to appear next Friday, to which time the examination was adjourned.

Her eyes were red, her nose was blue, "Sweet subject for embracing?" Her breath was anything but sweet, And all through her tight lacing. She wisely took a friend's advice, And soon Spring Blossom tripped. Left off tight lacing, her breath now is sweet, And she is satisfied.

'Twas indigestion that troubled her, (Picked Salmon and Toasted Cheese) With Cramps that almost doubled her, But in Spring Blossom she'd find ease.

WRECKED WRECK.

A Broken Rail-Carcase Broken Bones, and a Sorry Smash-up.

The extreme cold weather has made railroading extremely hazardous. On New Year's morning occurred another one of the many mishaps, which have been occurring all over the country, the scene of this one being about four miles north of Milton, on the Chicago & Northwestern road. The freight and accommodation train, due here at 7 o'clock in the morning, ran over a broken rail at that point. All the cars passed over safely except two freight cars, the baggage car and passenger coach, which were thrown from the track. The last two cars became detached from the rest of the train, and plunged down the embankment and were badly wrecked. The passenger car was turned over on its side, and in the general smash-up it seemed that all the passengers must be severely hurt, if not killed; but fortunately there were but few on the train, and still more fortunately there were none dangerously injured. Rev. A. J. Mead, of this city, the Presiding Elder of Janesville district, had his right shoulder dislocated and his collar bone broken. His son Olin, received some bad bruises on the left knee and hip. George Gledhill, of Jefferson, a short hand reporter, had his shoulder dislocated, and received a severe shock, which made him unconscious for some time, so that it was thought he was dangerously hurt. Rev. Mr. Marsh, of Beloit, was on the train, and received a slight cut on the head, and some bruises. There were one or two other passengers, who received scratches, but none of a serious nature, and all are reported as doing well.

Among the railroad men, Conductor Fred Buck had one leg somewhat bruised, and the brakeman, William Monroe, had his hip injured somewhat. Baggageman Hanks was quite severely hurt about the spine, and was the only one of the employees who is so injured as to be confined in doors.

The passengers were at once taken on the tender to Milton, where a caboose was furnished in which they continued their journey, arriving here only a little behind time, and soon after the wreck was cleared up and trains were running as usual. The passenger coach and baggage car were brought here, and show for themselves that they had a rough time, being badly shattered. The passengers speak in the highest terms of the coolness shown by the trainmen. As soon as the accident occurred, buckets of water were brought, and the kneeling fires quenched, and the passengers given every needed help.

NOT TRUE.

The rumor has been started that the stock of W. A. Webster, at Ripon, had been seized for an old debt of $1,000 due a Chicago house. I wish to state through the columns of your paper that the story is a base fabrication.

W. A. WEBSTER.

Jan. 3, 1881.

CRUSHED BY THE WHEELS.

A fatal accident occurred at Afton Saturday forenoon, the victim of which was Michael Torpy, a brakeman on the Chicago & Northwestern road. In some way he slipped and fell under the train, and was so badly crushed that he died yesterday morning. He was an unmarried young man, whose home is at Footville, where the funeral services will be held to-morrow, and the remains will be brought here for interment.

A BIG FARM.

The many friends of W. H. Booth, who went from here to Kansas, will be glad to learn of his continued prosperity. We notice from the Leavenworth Daily Press, that during the last ten months he has built upon his farm an addition to his dwelling, two barns, a cattle shed, an implement house, hog house, hen house, and corn crib, eight buildings in all, using therefor 40,000 feet of lumber. He has also placed on his farm during the past ten months, $1,000 worth of farming implements, a herd of short horned cattle, a lot of thoroughbred Berkshire hogs and a carload of Spanish American merino sheep, bought of Judge C. R. Gibbs, of Whitewater, Wis.

The same paper speaking of the farm, says:

It appears that Mr. Booth is more of an agriculturist and stock grower than he is generally supposed to be. His farm at this time embraces all of the improved farming machinery known in the agricultural world, and the stock introduced on his premises are the finest in blood for butchers and the dairy that can be bought in the United States.
